Rehabilitation Psychology 2010

The 12th annual continuing education program is sponsored by the American Board of Rehabilitation Psychology and the Division of Rehabilitation Psychology of the American Psychological Association. The American Board of Rehabilitation Psychology (ABRP) was established in 1995 and became fully affiliated with the American Board of Professional Psychology (ABPP) in 1997. It was established to conduct examinations leading to board certification in Rehabilitation Psychology. The Division of Rehabilitation Psychology was established in 1956, with the purpose of uniting all members of the American Psychological Association with interests in the rehabilitation and prevention of disability and chronic illness.

Specific program content was developed by the program committee for the 2010 Rehabilitation Conference in the areas of Disability thru the Lifespan, Psychological Well-being and Wellness in Rehabilitation Psychology, and Working with Returning Military and Veterans in Rehabilitation Psychology.

By the conclusion of this program, participants will:

1. Identify current trends and learn new skills in rehabilitation psychology practice;
2. Discuss recent research findings and their potential impact on service delivery;
3. Describe the key elements of ABPP/ABRP eligibility, the practice sample submission and review, the oral examination process, and characteristics of effective mentoring;
4. Recognize recent and pending changes in law and policy that affect service delivery and reimbursement;
5. Understand fundamental issues in ethics, cultural diversity, and evidence based practice as applied to rehabilitation psychology.

Target Audience:

This course is designed for psychologists in practice and/or academic settings who focus on rehabilitation with individuals having chronic disease and injuries and for trainees (students, interns, and postdoctoral fellows) with interests in rehabilitation psychology. Course content will be directed at both intermediate and advanced skill levels.

Course Fees:

The cost of the conference is $350 (if registration is received by January 15, 2010); $425 thereafter. Trainee registration is $75 (if received by January 15, 2010), and $95 thereafter; a letter verifying a trainee's status from his or her training program must accompany registration. Division 22 members and ABRP diplomates receive a $50 discount on registration fees. Checks should be made payable to "American Board of Rehabilitation Psychology." A full refund will be available until January 15, 2010. No refunds are available after that date. Eligible psychologists or trainees may join Division 22 at the time of registration for the main conference only and pay the discounted registration fee by completing the designated area on the registration form in this brochure and including a separate check for $40 ($25 students) made payable to "APA Division 22—Rehabilitation Psychology."

Pre-Conference The Business of Practice in Rehabilitation Psychology (Thursday, February 25, 2010): $75; $25 for Trainees - no discounts apply.
